

Call for contributions

European Psychomotricity Journal (EPJ) – 2025 Issue

The European Psychomotricity Journal (EPJ), published by the European Forum of Psychomotricity (EFP), invites contributions for its 2025 issue, welcoming original research, case studies, and policy insights from scholars and professionals in the field of Psychomotricity. As a peer-reviewed, open-access journal, EPJ aims to foster interdisciplinary dialogue and advance knowledge, practice, and policy across Europe and beyond.

EPJ is a platform for the exchange and advancement of scientific research, professional reflections, and global policy updates within Psychomotricity. The journal emphasizes interdisciplinary approaches, bridging cognition, emotion, and movement to support individuals across diverse life stages and sociocultural contexts.

We welcome contributions to the following sections:

1 | Foundations, innovations, and frontiers in Psychomotricity (Scientific Research)

This section focuses on high-quality empirical research, meta-analyses, and theoretical advancements. Topics of interest include (but are not limited to):

- Psychomotor development and neurobiological foundations
- Innovative intervention methodologies and theoretical models
- Experimental research and conceptual advancements

2 | Practice insights: case studies and professional reflections (Forum of Professional Experiences)

A space for practitioners to share experiences, best practices, and critical reflections. We encourage:

- Case studies showcasing intervention strategies
- Professional experiences from clinical, educational, and social settings
- Insights on interdisciplinary and collaborative psychomotor practices

3 | Global policy, professional horizons, and developments in Psychomotricity (International and National Policy & News)

This section explores policy updates, advocacy efforts, and organizational developments affecting Psychomotricity. Contributions may address:

- National and international regulations shaping the field
- Certification standards and professional recognition
- Advocacy efforts and institutional developments

Submission guidelines & Timeline

We welcome submissions in English, following the EPJ Authors' Guidelines (also available on our official website).

Key Dates

Call for contributions opens: 1st March 2025

Submission deadline: 31st May 2025

How to Submit

Submissions should be sent via email to info@psychomotricity-journal.eu

For inquiries, please contact info@psychomotricity-journal.eu (Nicole Messner)

We look forward to your contributions!

The EPJ Editorial Board

Silvia Cattafesta (ITA), Cristina Rubianes Vieira (POR), Judith Sägesser Wyss (CHE), Martin Vetter (GER)